NAZIS SAY SWEEPING VICTORY OVER RED ARMY NOW IMMINENT

Brief But Potent Forecast Is Published With Hitler's Approval

DETAILS MEAGRE

Reports Indicate Most Formidable of Russia's Forts Fail to Hold

(By International News Service)
BERLIN, June 25—A sweeping German victory over the vast Red Army is imminent, according to a brief but potent forecast published with Hitler's seal of approval today.

A 27-word communique issued from the Fuehrer's field headquarters at some undisclosed point on the eastern front said:

"In the east, fighting of the German army, air force and navy against Soviet armed forces is progressing so advantageously that great successes are to be expected."

The high command admitted raids by single Soviet planes on the cities of Memel and Koenigsberg, the latter the capital of East Prussia. Casualties continued on Page Four

United States Money Is Discussed for Rotarians

Charles V. Wenner, Torressdale Manor, was the speaker who appeared before members of Bensalem Rotary Club, last evening, giving a classification talk.

Mr. Wenner, a member of Bensalem club, and an employee of the Federal Reserve System, dwelt upon the topic of money as used in the United States of America since the union was perfected.

He showed a number of collectors' samples of practically all the bills printed or engraved by the United States government, with various sizes being noted.

On one bill there appeared the likeness of Martha Washington; and on another a picture of both George and Martha Washington. Only one bill in the collection had the dollar sign as it is known today.

Mr. Wenner discussed the processing of paper to make such bills; and told interesting stories of the reclaiming of bills damaged in flooded areas, such being sent to Washington to be destroyed, and replaced for the owner. "At one time the likeness of one individual would appear on bills of several denominations, this being unlike present methods of having one person's picture only on bills of one denomination," stated Mr. Wenner.

Due to scarcity of silk the members were informed, some nylon and rayon thread is used in making of paper money.

The Rev. Arthur F. Gibson presided; and three guests from Morrisville Club were welcomed.

CLOSELY WATCHING RISE OF LIVING COSTS

OPM Officials Ready To Move With Measures To Control Prices

FOOD MAY BE SCARCE

(Note: The following is the second of a series of articles describing the effect the National Defense Program may have on the cost of living for the man in the street.)

By Jack Vincent
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, June 25—(INS)—OPM officials today are closely watching the rise in the cost of living, ready to move in with measures to control food, clothing and rent costs if the increases do not level off soon.

Federal Price Control Administrator Leon Henderson already has asked 12 major bakeries not to increase the price of bread. In the food line, coffee may be next.

And, on the clothing front a ceiling has been imposed on hide prices to stabilize shoe prices.

In addition, some food items may become scarce because of lack of both ocean-going and transcontinental shipping facilities.

Chicago and Omaha meat shippers, it is reported, are feeling some tightness in the supply of refrigerator cars for moving fresh meats to the densely populated eastern seaboard states. Grand Rapids, Memphis and High Point, N. C., furniture shippers are reported hard pressed to find enough box cars to move their products.

The same situation is facing coal operators. With the peak defense shipments expected in the Fall, transportation for coal may be seriously hampered. In an official bulletin, the OPM says "Fill your coal bin early this Summer instead of waiting for Fall or Winter." And a nation-wide poster program to "plug" the "buy coal now" drive is planned.

According to the OPM's Consumers Division, the average family living costs increased one per cent from mid-March to mid-April. The increase, it is said, is mainly due to a 2.2 per cent increase in food costs and 2 per cent increases in clothing and fuel charges. The advances continued in the food line through May 27th, the latest date on which statistics are available.

Food costs last month, it is estimated, were 5.3 per cent above the same month last year. Eggs and butter are each about 20 per cent higher in retail price than last May. Oranges increased seasonally, beef prices declined but the price of pork, pork chops, bacon, lard, coffee, sugar and lamb were boosted.

Henderson's action in asking the 12 major bakeries not to increase bread prices—was tantamount to an order—is being extended to all bakeries through the country. It foreshadows further action along the same lines.

Eggs and dairy products, the latter include cheese, may have their prices pegged because of the need to ship those products to Great Britain. Sugar, cocoa and tea also may give government food experts some headaches because of lack of ocean shipping facilities. The coffee market has been going up steadily and its rise may lead to action that will set a precedent for controls on food imported into the U. S.

Henderson's office also is appealing to mayors of cities to set up fair rent control committees to prevent skyrocketing of rents. Some rents have increased 100 per cent but the average is from 20 to 40 per cent in defense areas. Unless rent control committees are established soon and are able to control the situation, legal steps are to be taken. Rent control, it is said, is important because it generally takes up one-fourth of the family income.

The control of clothing prices, as in the case of shoes, will be exerted through placing of ceilings on charges for raw materials. But if this fails, and profiteering starts by retailers, the government is going to step in with wider and more drastic measures. At the same time, the number of styles available in clothes will be cut, in some cases as much as five or six times.

(Tomorrow: What raw materials shortages mean.)

CHANGE MEETING HOUR

Hopkins Lodge, No. 87, I. O. O. F., will meet at eight o'clock tomorrow evening, instead of at nine o'clock as originally planned. The session will be held in the lodge room.

Received from International News Service Over Special Teletype News Wire.

British Make Blistering Attack On French Coast

LONDON, June 25—British bombers unleashed a new blistering attack on the German-occupied French coast today in what observers termed one of the strongest sweeps yet attempted by the RAF.

A few minutes after the swarms of bombers, heavily escorted by fighting planes, roared across the channel, the thud of bombs falling on the invasion coast could be heard on the English side of the channel.

The raid marked another of the virtually incessant attacks to which the invasion ports have been subjected for two weeks without respite.

It followed by only a few hours the fourteenth successive night attack in which fleets of British bombers hammered northern and western Germany while still other squadrons gave the invasion coast one of the heaviest night-time bombings of the war.

In the Reich the RAF machines returned to the same objectives they attacked the previous night, dropping tons of high explosives on the industrial German cities of Cologne and Dusseldorf and blasting the Nazi naval base at Kiel.

Eight Russian Planes Downed

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

The Listeners

Washington, June 24. IN this Administration there is a potent group which believes the thing of first importance in molding and implementing our foreign policy is "to keep the ear to the ground." All politicians understand what that means. The idea is to ascertain the strength or weakness of public sentiment and act accordingly.

IN this group are some individuals exceedingly close to the President. It is their view that in international affairs he should be sure he will have overwhelming public support before he does anything. He should, they think, take no step to which the majority will not subscribe. To

OIL FOR JAPAN

Washington is reported to be considering a stoppage of oil shipments to Japan. And well it may. Until recently there were plausible reasons for maintaining a trade that seemed to conflict with American policy toward China. Japan lacked oil; the United States had a surplus. Germany was trying to jockey Japan into a break with Washington, but Tokyo was reluctant to take such a step without provocation. A ban on American oil exports to Japan might have precipitated the hostilities so plainly desired by Berlin, with consequent dislocation of the aid-to-Britain program.

Today conditions are different. Japan has become so truculent that it is becoming increasingly difficult to meet her demands for oil while maintaining a semblance of American self respect. She is seeking to intimidate the Dutch East Indies, which only last month renewed the old agreement providing Nippon with a supply of about 900,000 tons of crude oil over a period of six months. Now Japan wants even more, and threatens trouble if the Dutch continue to refuse.

It does seem inconsistent, under these conditions, that the American people should face gasless Sundays or fuel rationing while 800,000 barrels of oil are being shipped to Japan every 30 days. With Americans being warned that they will be called upon to discontinue unnecessary driving and to lower the heat in their homes, with increases in gasoline and fuel oil prices predicted, is it not foolish to use American ships to transport huge supplies to a country that seizes every opportunity to insult the United States?

If the United States government does decide to stop supplying Japan with oil, it will have sound reasons. The oil is needed in America. The ships are needed. Under such circumstances, a ban on oil exports to Japan would not be punitive but dictated by American requirements. But the problem is more in the field of the State, War, and Navy Departments than in that of the Departments of Commerce or Interior.

BIGGER AND BETTER

It is not alone in numerical strength that the United States Army is making progress. As it draws nearer to the 2,000,000 mark, the nation's greatest peace-time Army is developing morale and standards of behavior that are amazing to veteran soldiers.

A study of War Department records shows that during the last half of 1940, as compared to averages for the five years preceding, there were fewer than half as many desertions, that even fewer were discharged from the Army because of conviction for civil offenses and that only a third as many were forced out by order of a court martial.

This is a remarkable and a heartening trend. Traditionally, soldiers on leave are a problem. It has been the custom to paint the town red, to furrow the brows of police and to streak their hair with gray. But nothing of the sort is happening, as large cities adjacent to Army camps have discovered.

The American Army of 1941 is a well-behaved organization of fine young men, worthy of the respect and the friendliness of the citizens. Picked from all walks of life, they are the cream of the nation's youth and their readiness to defend these shores should the necessity arise.

"The E. Whispers," now showing at the Bristol Theatre, was selected by Roland West after he had considered 25 other possible pieces of screen play material, including books, stage successes and original stories. He dialogued the picture himself.

GRAND THEATRE

Ladies and gentlemen: Watch for Pancho Lopez. He's the best caballero in all Mexico—he out-vivas Villa, a rioting, rustling, romancing rogue of the Rio Grande! He's Wallace Beery in his latest role—a role colorful as his Pancho Villa—a role of action-packed drama, thrills and hilarious comedy. You loved him as Villa—you loved him in "Wyoming"—now see him at his swashbuckling best as the Robin Hood of the cattle lands. Beery, in "The Bad Man," comes Thursday to the Grand Theatre. It was one of the greatest stage plays in New York's theatrical history.

Filmed in scenic splendor near Gallup, N. M., with Lionel Barrymore teamed with Beery for the first time since "Ah, Wilderness." "The Bad Man" presents a new side of Beery's talent. Richard Thorpe, who directed "Wyoming," again directed Beery in the new picture. There's a great cast, with Laraine Day, Ronald Reagan, Chris-Pin Martin, Tom Conway, Chill Wills, Nydia Westman and Charles Stevens.

Here are the facts about the possible shortage of gasoline and furnace oil

Oil is a vitally important raw material in the present emergency. A steady supply must be kept flowing to England—and to our own military forces and defense industries. All this is in addition to normal civilian needs.

Perhaps you have wondered, in recent weeks, about a possible shortage—and what it might mean to your car and your oil burner.

We want our customers to know the facts.

Nearly all the crude oil refined on the Eastern Seaboard is brought from the oil fields of the Southwest by ocean-going tankers.

These tank ships normally deliver 1,250,000 barrels of crude oil and petroleum products daily to Philadelphia and other eastern centers.

In the present emergency, fifty tank ships have been diverted to carrying petroleum products from Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico ports to North Atlantic ports for subsequent reshipment to England.

The diversion of this tanker fleet naturally reduces, for the time being at least, the volume of crude oil received on the Eastern Seaboard and the volume of products available for the public.

Atlantic contributed three of its 10,000-ton tank ships to the British relief tanker pool. We were glad to do this, even though it meant our own supplies might be reduced.

There will be further reductions if more tankers are taken over by the Government. There may even be a temporary shortage of petroleum products, forced by conditions over which we have no control. We hope none of these things happens—but we have to face the facts.

This emergency is not a question of production. The nation's oil fields and refineries can meet all conceivable demands for petroleum.

The problem is simply transportation. So we are stepping up the efficiency of our transportation system—and expanding our tanker fleet as fast as possible.

We are doing everything possible to assure our customers ample supplies of Atlantic products. But whatever happens, the entire Atlantic organization will co-operate whole-heartedly with the Government in the national defense program. We are sure that's what our customers would want us to do.

Boilermakers Defeat Diamond

FIRST WIN OF 2ND HALF

Ashton Missed Ball and Three

EDDINGTON, June 25—A three-base error by Gene Ashton aided the Badenhause team to a 6-3 victory over the Diamond team last evening on Turner's field. The boiler-makers looked better than they did all season in downing the Diamantians.

It marked the first win of the second half for the Badenhause team and the fifth defeat of the first half for Diamond. A twist in the schedule caused this little confusion in the playing of the game.

Ashton's miscue came while he was playing centerfield for the Diamond team. Hits by Naylor and Dean and a walk to Cobleigh had filled for the Diamond team. Hits by Naylor and Dean and a walk to Cobleigh had filled for the Diamond team.

A sore arm forced the Diamond starting hurler, Danny Keegan, to the sidelines after the second inning. He was relieved by Ashton who was nicked for five hits, three being for extra bases.

Harker, Stallone, Naylor and Cobleigh played good ball ahead for the club.

EDGELY FINISHES IN 2ND PLACE IN LEAGUE

EDGELY, June 25—The Edgely A. C. team finished the first half of the Bristol Suburban League in second place by topping the Fleetwings nine, 8-4, last evening on the Edgely diamond.

With the victory, Ralph Linck, Edgely twirler, passed up a chance to enter the mythical hall of fame. For six innings Linck set back the airplane workers without a run or hit and only four batters had reached base, three on passes and one on an error.

Suddenly, the diminutive southpaw hurler went to pieces and before the last frame was over, the Fleetwings had counted four runs on two doubles, a single, a pass, and an error by Leinheiser.

Dewsnap with two out of three, and Felkner, with two out of four, led the hitters.

No game is scheduled for this evening while tomorrow evening, Voltz-Texaco plays St. Ann's on St. Ann's field and the Odd Fellows meet the Auto Boys on Leedom's field.
